

CONTENTS

SPECIAL FOCUS

HOW DO WE LISTEN TO COLONIALISM? (ITALY AND BEYOND)

edited by Gianpaolo Chiriaco and Emilio Tamburini

“Those are memories that must be sung”: introducing the sonic legacy of Italian colonialism Gianpaolo Chiriaco and Emilio Tamburini	4
Decolonizing Listening to Decolonize Memory Francis Sosta	10
Forgotten and popular. Sonic memory and colonial imagery in today’s Italy Emilio Tamburini	24
Abdi Shop and the Duka Azmari House. Musical traces of the Italian colonial project in Addis Ababa and in Italy Gianpaolo Chiriaco	48
(Un)making the myth of Italianità . On the relationship between imagery and song in fascist colonialism and its heritage Alessandra Ferlito	64
Sound map of a migration journey. A sonic essay Melanye Garland	78
Listening to Colonialism and Hearing Liberation Napoleon Maddox	86

ARTICLES | INTERVIEWS | REVIEWS

Unveiling paths and patterns: a stylistic analysis of Chris Abani’s Song for Night Gabriela Alexandra Banita	94
Blackness, Epiphenomenal Reality, and “our painfully shared humanity”: an interview with Michelle M. Wright Renata Morresi	109

An interview with writer Ayesha Harruna Attah Elisa Bordin	123
“Small supplies of grace”: arte, pacifismo e transnazionalità nei versi delle poete arabo-americane Mariangela Masullo su In filigrana. Poesia arabo-americana scritta da donne di Lisa Marchi	128